Description: Busyness is a sickness of the soul that affects many today - from the young to the old. The last thing anyone has time for is rest. But rest - Sabbath - is not only necessary for your social, emotional, and physiological well-being but to become who God wants you to be.

Nathan Stucky shows that rest challenges us whose identities are rooted in productivity, efficiency, achievement, and accomplishment. The notion of Sabbath grace both appeals and disorients. Yet through the Sabbath, God invites people into an identity rooted and grounded in the grace, life and provision of God. Wrestling with Rest offers biblical and practical advice for helping every one of every age to discover their God-given identity in which they can truly find rest.

Nathan T. Stucky serves as Director of the Farminary Project at Princeton Theological Seminary. He grew up on a farm in Kansas where his love for Christian faith and agriculture first took root. After earning a B. A. in Music from Bethel College (KS), Nathan spent six years doing ecumenical youth ministry on the eastern shore of Maryland and two years farming back in Kansas. After farming, Nathan earned an M.Div. and a Ph.D. (Practical Theology, Christian Education and Formation) from Princeton Theological Seminary. His scholarship explores the integration of theological education and agrarianism, and he sees the Farminary as a locus for enacting that integration. Ordained in the Mennonite Church (USA), Nathan engages Farminary work as integral to his calling to teaching ministry. He lives in Princeton, NJ, with his wife and three children.
